Listings Trends

The key metrics for residential inventory (single-family homes, condominiums and townhomes) track the total number and value of active listings, pricing and market pace. Inventory trends are subject to seasonal effects and are driven by employment, household formation and affordability. The average time it takes to sell a property and the rate of inventory absorption are constrained by inventory or demand, and pricing reflects the impact of these constraints. The area covered by these graphs is the footprint of an Association, MLS or broker. Data source(s): MLS listings data

Sales Trends

The metrics for completed sales reflect the demand side of the housing market—how many residential properties actually were sold and for how much. Large differences between supply (active inventory) and demand can indicate an imbalance in the market, which tends to even out over time as pricing shifts to correct for an over- or undersupply of inventory. The area covered by these graphs is the footprint of an Association, MLS or broker. Data source(s): MLS listings data

Distressed Trends

The distressed segment of the market represents those homes in some stage of the mortgage default process, from short sale, to pre-foreclosure, to foreclosure, bank repossession, and auction or sale. Not all distressed properties are in foreclosure. Distressed pricing tends to reflect the impaired condition of the borrower or the property. Historically, there has always been some "normal" level of distressed activity, which has been elevated over the last several years. The area covered by this graph is the footprint of an Association, MLS or broker. Data source(s): Public records and MLS listings data where available
